The album was nominated for the 2003 Mercury Prize, and was listed as the second biggest selling album of 2003 in the UK. Critical reception Upon its release, the album received mostly positive reviews from critics. Allmusic's Heather Phares gave the album 4 out of 5 stars, and commented that "While the majority of the songs are predictable and formulaic, Blunt demonstrates his vocal range with flawless performances" and "Blunt is remarkably good for a debut." PopMatters' Todd Martens also commented that the album is "memorable" and said the album is "a pleasure to listen to." In a review for NME, 2d92ce491b
