Q: Sending and receiving data from a website to a php file I have created a website in php that requires a user to sign in and give the location of their GPS in order to be able to view their location on a map. I want to be able to have a php file that will check to see if the $_GET variable for the PHP file has the $_GET variable for GPS_Data and if so, use that data to put it into a mysql database. I'm not sure how to get the data to the PHP file in the first place and I don't think I should be putting the location data into the database (its personal and not for any public use), so I'm trying to check if the data is in a GET variable before putting it into the database. The website works fine, it's my php file that I'm having trouble with. Thanks A: You should always try to use a framework or cms to do this kind of stuff, it makes a lot of things much easier. Anyway, the problem you are facing is that you are probably asking to a page on a different domain than you expect, and thus the php script could not get the data to put in the database. If you need to make your website secure you could use Young people in the United States remain the most connected to the Internet of all ages. As high school and college students make up almost 25% of the U.S. population, the United States remains a leader in Internet usage among young people. Smartphone adoption is very high among these young people. Between 2015 and 2019, the number of smartphone users among Americans ages 18 to 24 increased by 6 percent, compared to a 1 percent growth for the overall population. However, like the Internet as a whole, young people's usage of the mobile phone has shifted from the personal computer to the smartphone. In 2015, the most common use of the Internet was to go online at work. By 2018, the top activities

Internet Radio No Confidence in Tobago's Tobago House of Assembly Tobago House of Assembly Speaker, Hon. Kennedy Dorsett, speaks to reporters regarding his decision to resign his position. 8 Jun, 2016 | by Port-of-Spain Guardian The issue of personal confidence in the Tobago House of Assembly (THA) speaker continues to roil the legislature. Despite what is now a list of 45 questions and answers in which Speaker, Hon. Kennedy Dorsett, says he has provided answers to all questions, opposition parties are dismissing his decision to resign as sham. On Sunday, when the chair of the Port of Spain Mass Transit Commission (MOTIC), Mr. Wayne Wilson, questioned Mr. Dorsett's conduct as THA speaker in the light of the evidence made available to the public, Mr. Dorsett made a statement to the press. In his statement he said that while the Chairman of the MOTIC is a friend of his, he felt that Mr. Wilson's questions were not only inappropriate but could also be interpreted as irresponsible. The MOTIC chairman, Mr. Wilson, told Newsday that he will continue to raise the matter until Mr. Dorsett resigns his post. In his statement, Mr. Dorsett also advised that since the Speaker is not a minister in the government, the same consideration would not apply to his questions. The MOTIC was, in fact, responding to a question submitted by Ms. Jameela June. Ms. June submitted a question to the Speaker regarding whether the MOTIC had received documentation, with which 2d92ce491b
