The crusaders have recruited a band of orcs and trolls to help them infiltrate the palace of the emperor. Mysterious circles of concrete mold the city. They are ruled by a cruel tyrant with one eye. The captors were dead before the garrison realized what had happened. The crusaders arouse a fury with incredible savagery. Its new report showed that the number of lone parent families with dependent children has risen by almost 50 per cent since the recession hit. The number of lone parent families with dependent children rose by 39.8 per cent between 2007 and 2010 to 3.38 million. It found that those on the lowest incomes were more likely to be lone parent families with dependent children. Fathers in workless households accounted for 58 per cent of lone parent families with dependent children and 30 per cent of lone parents with children living in households with a lone parent. The report by the Child Poverty Action Group said the Treasury must ensure that the poorest families can have the housing benefit they need. Parenting in a recession: low pay, caring and support Some 4.3 million families have sole parents and around 2.6 million of those have children aged one to 17 in the UK. Two-thirds of those lone parents are women and the report's author, Frances O'Grady, said they were "at risk of poverty". Ms O'Grady said: "Our new research shows a worrying increase in the number of lone parents with dependent children in the UK." "Austerity is not working for this group. Families with lone parents have had their budgets cut and benefit sanctions handed out in record numbers." The report also claims that unemployment will impact on lone parents in two ways: firstly by keeping people in work and secondly by cutting child benefit. "Many lone parents struggle to make ends meet because work often pays little and tax credits are often calculated on the basis of two-earner households, meaning that lone parents get less support than others on low incomes," she said. "We need to do more to help families with dependent children." The report suggests that there are at least three options. The first is to allow all families, including lone parents with children, to get the maximum child f3e1b3768c
