I'm trying to display in the QTreeWidgetItem the children (using QFileSystemModel) of some folders. However, I want to count the number of folders that appear before the visible one (I want to display them in a vertical box). I found a thread in the forum saying that you can do it with the solution: ui->treeWidget->setVisibleRows(0, ui->treeWidget->count()); However, I get an error message in this case : "incompatible function call to 'QTreeWidgetItem::count' (expected 'int' but argument is of type 'int (*)(const QModelIndex &, const QModelIndex &, int, int))' " Any ideas? A: The count() function should be used on a QList or QMutableList for example : int numberOfFolders = ui->treeWidget->model()->rowCount(); This is your original code (taken from QtCreator) and it works fine. Q: How do I update a Firebase account in Xcode 9? Recently, I updated my Xcode from Xcode 8 to Xcode 9. During the process, I made a change to the credentials for a Firebase project. When I open the project in Xcode 9, it seems to be using the old account (the account that I used in Xcode 8). How can I update the account that the project is using? A: You need to explicitly check the correct account by going into your keychain and verifying that the correct account is the one that you want to use.
