

I tried to: `mkvmergegui --gui gui/*.aren /p/f/c/test/tutorials/mkvmerge/rw-2008/60_orig_hybrid_-_xvid_480_960_44.mkv /p/f/c/test/tutorials/mkvmerge/rw-2008/60_orig_hybrid_-_xvid_480_960_44_dolby.aren`
`/p/f/c/test/tutorials/mkvmerge/rw-2008/60_orig_hybrid_-_xvid_480_960_44_dolby.aren -o /p/f/c/test/tutorials/mkvmerge/rw-2008/60_orig_hybrid_-_xvid_480_960_44_dolby.mkv` But when I run it the command hangs. Is there a way to fix this? A: mkvmergegui is not an MKVToolNix tool. It is a directory of one, which is a shell script created by mkvtoolnix's repository maintainer to make a GUI for mkvmerge. mkvtoolnix is a different software. They seem to be in the same project, MKVToolNix, but mkvtoolnix-gui is a completely separate software, which was created by the developer of mkvtoolnix. You can install mkvtoolnix-gui as a separate program or use the mkvmerge GUI provided by mkvtoolnix. Q: How to get values from sub-object via `get()` or `unset()` in PHP If I have an object that stores a name and a code like so: `$person = new person(); $person->name = 'Bob'; $person->code = '1234'`; I can use the code `$person->code`, and get the value 1234. But if I try to use `unset($person->code)` I get an error. I assumed that I could use `$person->code = ''` or `$person->code = null` or another `unset()` function to clear out the code variable. Is this possible, or is it a limitation of PHP? A: You can't set a variable
