Live Performance Beat and Automation from Ableton Link The Kompakt live module now comes with a new Link feature that allows the Ableton Live user to link their audio, MIDI and automation engine to the Kompakt live module. This allows the link between the audio engineer and Kompakt live to function in a full circle manner, giving both users the opportunity to use their respective experience. Enhanced Instrument Generation for better control The instrument creation system now has an additional layer of enhancement, giving the instrument a tighter control over its generated sounds. The system offers detailed control over tone shaping and mixing and even sub-octave instru... The innovative MAS-1 Reverb is a reverb that is specifically designed for music production, but also makes a perfect general-purpose reverb or echo effect. It is also an interesting option for any vocals or drums when you want to create the perfect final mix. Ableton Live Performance The Instrument Track does not need to be specified in the automation to work. It can be fully controlled via the keyboard or even external MIDI. Any parameter such as a pan or an effect can be sent to the Instrument Track. Ableton Link The Instrument Track is also linked to Ableton Live and can thus be automatically triggered by the song structure. It is also possible to specify what part of the song the Instrument Track will start at. Transformation Process The instrument track is in a separate session, which can be merged with other tracks in order to create new multi-dimensional sounds. Full control over the saturation The instrument track can be fully saturated, in which case the sound is automatically adjusted to be louder or softer.
