Salad I'm posting a re-post of this because the month of April was the first month in a long time that I didn't make my own pasta for pasta salad. This is because the stove top pasta machine just broke and, of course, I immediately had to spend a good part of a week on buying a new one. So this salad was made with pre-made noodles. *While I hadn't bought the pasta machine, it is a great tool. I do use this pasta maker about once a week and I will never go back to cooking pasta by hand. I hope that you'll consider getting one. This is a delicious, quick, and easy recipe that you can make ahead or make the night before to have for lunch the next day. I like to add avocado and some fresh herbs to the salad as well – but the only thing that I prefer to make ahead is the pasta itself. Some of the flavors – the shrimp, the avocado, and especially the tomatoes – don't hold up very well. As I usually make this salad in the dead of winter, I used frozen shrimp and peeled chopped tomatoes. I just don't get a chance to use fresh plump tomatoes in winter and, even in Florida, we rarely get ripe strawberries. So I used frozen strawberries. If you do have fresh strawberries available, just add them in at the end of the cooking process. I recommend that you use very fresh seafood. Frozen shrimp and clams are fine, but I find that in this recipe, fresh shrimp works better than frozen. If you can get high quality raw shrimp, I recommend throwing them on the grill and grilling them. *The recipe calls for olive oil, which you can substitute with extra virgin olive oil. If you do substitute it, you may need to use less olive oil. The pasta for this salad is a simple recipe as well, only 3e33713323
